The Home Soda Fountain.

The soda fountain makes an almost universal appeal to children of all ages, and when it is a home soda fountain, one may be sure of a no-nonsense, healthful drink. In these days of mental tension, some form of mid-afternoon break in the day's routine has become an institution in many households. Not the least of its recommendations is the fact that it offers a pleasant pretext for friends and neighbors to drop in for an informal visit, and when the food values of a milk drink are added to the opportunity for mental relaxation, the afternoon milk party becomes a family health measure of real importance.

The most delicious milk drinks can be made in a jiffy out of fresh whole milk, powdered milk, evaporated milk, or condensed milk. Household flavoring extracts, soda fountain syrups, home-made syrups, or juices from fresh or canned fruits may be used. Pronounced flavors like chocolate, vanilla, strawberry, and orange are prime favorites. Any one who wishes to be an expert mixer of delicious milk drinks will keep a number of flavoring substances on the "soda fountain shelf" and experiment with quantity and combinations of flavors. Fresh milk is generally available for the home soda fountain. If not, powdered, condensed, or evaporated milk may be used. Powdered whole milk may be bought in the cans at first-class grocery stores, and will not spoil if the lid is kept on the can to exclude the dampness. A can of powdered milk is, therefore, a convenient addition to the home soda fountain outfit, together with a supply of syrups, malted milk powder, and fresh eggs.

A large variety of delicious drinks may be made according to the following general directions: Put about twelve drops, or one-eighth teaspoonful, of any good flavoring extract in a glass. Add about two teaspoonfuls of sugar and fill the glass nearly full with milk. Add a little finely chopped ice if you have any, for the colder the drink the better it is. Use a narrow egg-beater to stir the mixture for half a minute. If fruit syrups are used instead of flavoring, one to three teaspoonfuls of sugar, depending on its sweetness and strength, will be found sufficient for each glass. If fruit syrups are used, the drinks are preferably made with charged water, which can be purchased by the bottle from the better grocery stores and drug stores, or purveyors of mineral water. In mixing the soda a small stream of charged water is better than a large stream. All mixtures should be shaken or whipped thoroughly before the charged water is added.

If whole milk powder is used instead of fresh milk, add two teaspoonfuls of the milk powder to the sugar and flavoring, or the syrup. Then add a little cold water, and stir the mixture for half a minute with a narrow egg-beater. Fill the glass with cold water and stir thoroughly to mix the flavor. In using evaporated milk, dilute it with an equal quantity of cold water. If sweetened condensed milk is used, use one and one-fourth to one and one-half parts of water to one part of the condensed milk. As this product is still quite sweet, do not use any sweetening in the drink. It is best combined with plain fruit juices, using two teaspoonfuls of juice to three-fourths glassful of milk. For a chocolate drink with the condensed milk, dissolve one square of chocolate in two-thirds cupful of boiling water, and use two-thirds of the chocolate mixture together with the condensed milk and one cupful of sugar. This should not be used in drinks served to children.

For a chocolate Syrup to use in the milk drinks, add one and three-fourths cupfuls of boiling water to three squares of grated chocolate. When the chocolate is melted, add two cupfuls of sugar, one-eighth teaspoonful of salt, and boil for five minutes. Remove from fire and add two cupfuls of cold water. A Coffee Syrup may be made by boiling together for five minutes one cupful of strong coffee and one cupful of sugar. This should not be used in drinks served to children.

Vanilla Syrup. Boil together for five minutes one and one-half cupfuls of sugar and two cupfuls of water. Remove from the fire and add two teaspoonfuls of vanilla. Make Orange Syrup the same as Grape Syrup, unless the oranges are very sour, when three-fourths pound of sugar may be used. Use the orange pulp, finely chopped.

For a Syrup made from strawberries or other fruits, use one pound of fruit, chopped fine and two-fourths pound of sugar, and boil for five minutes. Strawberry jam or preserves may be used, but use a little less than a tablespoonful in a glass, as they are a little sweeter than the syrups. Other jams and preserves may likewise be used. If one desires, following the same directions.

VARIATIONS. For a variation, one may use an egg in the drink. The two teaspoonfuls of syrup, add two-thirds of a glassful of milk, and an egg. Beat thoroughly and then add the charged water.

Ice-cream also an improvement to the drinks. Beat the syrup and milk together with a very little ice cream. If desired and pour into the glass containing a small serving of ice cream. Then add the charged water. For malted milk, add to the two tablespoonfuls of chocolate or vanilla syrup two teaspoonfuls of malted milk, a little whole milk, and if desired a little ice cream. Stir thoroughly and fill the glass with milk. In serving drinks, the appeal to the eyes is not to be ignored, and the importance of trifles is demonstrated in the enjoyment of having the drink very cold and well whipped, and served in a tall glass with a straw. A little cinnamon or nutmeg sprinkled over the top of a milk drink often makes it more appealing, and a dash of whipped cream with a bit of bright colored preserved fruit, or a few nuts on top, is often a desirable addition. The drink usually makes a greater appeal when slightly colored with a vegetable color, than when it is the plain milk color. Crushed macaroons may sometimes be sifted over the top of the milk drink, and the result is especially delicious if almond flavoring is used. When the milk-drinks are mixed for children, however, it is well to keep them as simple as possible, using a minimum of both flavoring and sweetening materials.

Discoveries for Housewives.

To Clean Combs—The quickest and most completely successful way to clean a comb is to use the ordinary stragg comb cleaner slightly moistened with water. The comb cleaner dissolves the oil which holds the hair on the comb, leaving it as clean as when new. Any of the toothbrushes, toothpaste, or dry cleaning preparations may be used instead of comb cleaner, though the latter being non-proprietary, is sometimes cheaper.

A Bathroom Addition—A salt shaker is not a usual bathroom furnishing, but it will find its place in every toilet cabinet, once people discover how swiftly a shake of table salt on the toothbrush removes the toothpaste, leaving the brush clean and ready for use. The salt, when used on the salt alone, giving up pastes or powders, but use it as a follow-up treatment every now and then.

A New Use for a Rubber Sponge—Quite accidentally I discovered that an old rubber sponge is excellent for cleaning the porcelain in the bathroom. It retains the cleaning powder, produces a good amount of friction, and does not become stringy as a cloth does. It is easily rinsed, and is a joy to handle.

Stringing beads—I have found that a most useful and durable string for stringing beads on is dental floss, which you can purchase for a small sum at any drug-store.
